

I would prefer not to have my isp be forced to allow monitoring of my use of the internet, particularly email. This is invasive and sets a dangerous precedent for electronic monitoring that could potentially erode liberty, and will certainly cost the ISP and government, or by expansion, myself and other consumers and taxpayers moneys that could be better spent on other projects.